

Tallulah Bannerman.

Architect | Designer

Currently in the fourth year of an MA (Hons) in Architecture at The University of Edinburgh, I am looking to expand my professional experience. As a thoughtful, innately curious designer, my approach to design challenges is holistic, carefully combining and presenting my thought process with research, physical and digital experimentation. Recognised for my drive, ambition, and ability to bring others along with me, I enjoy working collaboratively to achieve a common goal. I often demonstrate leadership in both academic and practical work. My passion lies in socially conscious, community-focused design that minimises environmental impact. I believe we can elicit positive change through good design that brings people together, whilst celebrating cultural and social differences. Through the practice of architecture, my aspiration is to develop my knowledge and understanding to create places that better the lives of the people who inhabit them, enabling me to fulfil a deep-seated desire to contribute practically towards social and economic justice.
